CANDIDATE SCORECARD:

2022 UNITED STATES MIDTERM ELECTIONS

This Candidate Scorecard Report highlights where the 2022 candidates for select midterm campaigns stand on issues that are most relevant during the present political moment. As we approach the primaries and November 8th, we hope this report will inform voters of their candidates' values and equip advocates with content to supplement voter education campaigns. We also intend for this report to encourage deeper conversations about holding our elected officials accountable for serving the will of the people, not corporate funders.

The issues explored in this report include climate and environment, public education, voting rights, the right to protest, reproductive healthcare, criminal justice, and money in politics. Scorecards for incumbent candidates also note whether or not they are affiliated with the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), a Koch-funded organization that brings public officials together with corporate advocates to write legislation. Scorecards also include how much money, if any, a candidate has received directly from Charles Koch and notes the instances where the total includes donations from the Koch-funded astroturf organization, Americans For Prosperity (specific monetary amounts are listed in our spreadsheet).

UnKoch My Campus chose to focus on races where incumbents have a history of accepting Koch donations, and focused on issue areas that align in some way with the Koch network's regressive political agenda. We view this Candidate Scorecard Report as a pathway to deepen political education, agitate against insufficient narratives within electoral politics, and bring electoral organizers into community-centered campaigns long after November 8th.

METHODOLOGY

We chose a two pronged approach to our scorecards – looking at some races on a macro level, where we focus solely on Koch candidates and how much money they've received over time; and then we've chosen a few races to focus on with more scrutiny. For the latter races we've done a thorough scoring of all candidates, including those with Koch funding and their opponents. In addition to a handful of races across the country we are focusing on races in Arizona and Florida, two states with strong ties to the Koch network.

We chose to score all incumbents and challengers on seven broad themes that are both particularly relevant to the 2022 election and intersect with UnKoch's vision of reclaiming institutions for the common good. This includes the climate and environment, education, voting rights, the right to protest, reproductive healthcare, criminal justice reform, and money in politics.

We narrowed our scope of inquiry for both incumbent and challenging candidates by focusing on a number of key issues that have been prioritized during this campaign season. For this review, we used the candidates' campaign websites and social media presence to obtain scoring data. To identify the candidates' stances on these criteria, we reviewed each candidates' campaign website, searched keywords within the candidate's social media pages, and researched additional media coverage on the candidate if further information was needed. You can find the sources used for this data collection on each corresponding scorecard.

ISSUE	NARROWED SCOPE OF INQUIRY

	+5	+10	+10	-10	-10
ALEC Member				YES
Climate & Environment	Clearly Accessible on Website	Talks about dangers of pollution and reducing it	Advocates for the expansion of renewable energy (wind, solar, etc...)	Promotes deregulation and/or fossil fuels	Advocates for the expansion of fracking
Education	Clearly Accessible on Website	Advocates to invest in public schools	Seeks to address student loan debt	Advocates for charter schools or vouchers	Feeds into the CRT moral panic
Voting Rights	Clearly Accessible on Website	Promotes mail in voting	Protective of voting rights	Pro-Voter ID	Rejects mail in voting
Right to Protest	Clearly Accessible on Website	Affirms Right to Protest		Supports police protest actions	Mentions cancel culture
Repro Healthcare	Clearly Accessible on Website	Advocate for pro-choice	Advocates for paid family leave	Anti-abortion stance (anti Roe. V. Wade, etc...)
Criminal Justice	Clearly Accessible on Website	Seeks to address police brutality	Seeks to end for-profit prisons	Promotes increased police funding
Money in Politics	Clearly Accessible on Website	In favor of overturning Citizens United	in favor of campaign finance reform

SCORING

After tallying the total points for each candidate, we created a comparative grade for a score that was easy to understand by the majority of people. Any candidate who scored a 100 or higher received an "A." A score of 80 to 99 received a "B." A candidate who scored 50 to 79 received a "C." And a score of 0 to 49 netted a "D" rating. Any candidate who had a negative score received an F. We did not provide a score/grade for any candidate who was missing information in multiple issue areas as it did not allow for an accurate score.

OUTCOMES & ANALYSIS

We looked at campaigns in a variety of states, including Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, South Carolina, and Wisconsin. We decided to focus in particular on five Senate races (Arizona, Florida, Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin), 10 races for the House of Representatives (Arizona, Florida, Michigan, Ohio), and two Governor races (Arizona and Florida). The races we looked at, the data we gathered, and the rubric we used can be accessed in this open spreadsheet.

We tracked 38 Koch-funded candidates who have received $125,000 for this current election cycle and $1,525,340 in overall funding through the years they have been running for office. We scored each candidate using our methodology above, and reviewed their public platforms/views on climate and environment, education, voting rights, the right to protest, reproductive healthcare, criminal justice reform, and money in politics. The average score for a Koch funded candidate was -33.3, which equals a grade of F. Overall, Koch funded candidates scored lowest in climate/environmental rights and education.

Incumbents also received a score if they are affiliated with the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC). This Koch-funded organization almost exclusively promotes model policy that supports and promotes a Koch network-friendly agenda. ALEC's bills undermine environmental regulations and stop action on climate change, support school privatization and promote charter schools, weaken unions, cut taxes for billionaires, mandate strict election laws that disenfranchise voters, and many more harmful initiatives. It's not surprising that all six of the candidates who are ALEC affiliated on our list also received Koch funding.

Overall, these findings underscore the capacity of the Koch network to influence election season on a broad scale and in complex ways. Our research demonstrates that candidates across the country whose stated values align with Charles Koch's agenda consistently receive Koch funding. Allegiance to the Koch network proves valuable to candidates facing contentious races. As seen in the spreadsheet, Koch candidates in close races can count on hundreds of thousands of dollars in additional support from the Koch-funded astrotruf organization Americans For Prosperity. When interpreting these results, it is also important to keep in mind the opacity of campaign finance. The multitude of ways in which donors can maintain anonymity gives us reason to believe that the dollar values outlined in this report are likely at the low end of Koch's monetary impact on the election. Bearing in mind this opacity, even relatively small donations are of interest as indicators of deeper connections between Charles Koch and Koch-funded candidates that are not made publically available.

FOCUS ON ARIZONA & FLORIDA

We chose to focus on these two states for a variety of reasons. Koch money and influence has been a part of Arizona for decades. Current Governor, Doug Ducey, (who is not running for reelection) was voted into his position in 2015, in part thanks to an infusion of almost $1.5 million from Charles Koch and his late brother David. Ducey's reign in Arizona has been disastrous for public schools in the state. The continuous infusion of Koch network money (through organizations like Americans for Prosperity and the American Legislative Exchange Council), has the public school system in true peril. The Koch network's efforts to dismantle public schools has made a significant impact: Arizona has nearly the lowest per pupil spending, one of the lowest averages for teacher's pay, and some of the largest class sizes on average. Between the continued destruction of public schools in the state and Koch funding of the Freedom Center at the University of Arizona, it is crucial to UnKoch Arizona. In addition to Matt Salmon, a Republican candidate for Governor who has received $8,500 from Koch in previous races, there are currently three Koch-funded candidates in the state running for Congress, who have received $91,000 in campaign donations over the years.

Florida also has a number of Koch-funded folks running. Governor Ron DeSantis is running for re-election, and is a Koch darling. Beyond personal contributions to previous DeSantis campaigns (totaling $45,000), various Koch-funded affiliates helped the Governor win in 2018. While the Florida governor race is listed as "likely Republican" it is still one of the more uncertain republican governor races coming up in 2022, and there may be a chance to UnKoch Florida. In addition to DeSantis' run for Governor, five Koch-funded candidates are running for Congress, and have received a total of $218,731 in campaign donations over the years (of that $106,231 came from the Koch-funded Americans For Prosperity).

USING THIS RESOURCE

We intend for organizers, advocates, and organizations across the country to use these scorecards for voter education in whatever spaces they find useful. We encourage you to print paper copies as needed, share them with your membership, and post findings on your social media.
